QASHQAI KILIM

HISTORY OF HANDICRAFTS IN IRAN

Iran, alongside China and India, boasts a rich history of handicrafts, cementing its place as a global center for this art form.

Iran's artistic and architectural heritage is deeply rooted in a 5,000-year-old civilization. This cradle of culture has given birth to numerous arts and sciences, including mathematics, astronomy, agriculture, metallurgy, pottery, philosophy, and more.

In Iran, handicrafts are more than just a physical pursuit. Artisans pour their hearts and souls into their work, much like poets or writers.

Iranian artists have captivated the world with their exquisite creations, including carpets, miniature paintings, enamel work, and wood marquetry.

Our organisation was established with the noble aim of preserving and reviving Iran's rich heritage of traditional arts and crafts. Comprised of a team of the finest artisans in Iran, we create exquisite and unparalleled works of art that have gained international recognition, particularly among collectors and museums.

With direct access to a treasure trove of unique designs and materials, we have positioned ourselves as a hub for Iranian handicrafts, producing a wide range of high-quality art pieces. These works beautifully blend tradition with innovation, showcasing the rich heritage of Iranian art.

Beyond producing exceptional artworks, we are committed to educating and empowering local artisans, particularly women heads of households in underprivileged areas. Through workshops and exhibitions, we contribute to the preservation and revival of traditional crafts, while creating sustainable employment opportunities.

TYPES OF TRADITIONAL KNITTED FLOORING

Carpet

A soft, floor-covering textile, typically handwoven from materials like silk and wool.

Kilim

Or “Gelim” is a flat woven carpet or rug made of wool, which is traditionally produced in the countries of the former Iranian empire.

Zilu

A type of hand-woven underlay and floor covering made of cotton yarn, very similar to a Kilim

Gabeh

It is a hand-woven carpet with long piles, and more wefts are used in its texture, which has a significant effect on the softness of the rug.

HISTORY OF KILIM RUGS

The origins of the Iranian gilim rug can be traced back to the nomadic tribes of the former Persian Empire. These nomadic peoples originally used gilims as practical items such as blankets, saddlebags, and floor coverings. While the exact origins of carpet weaving are debated, it is widely believed that the early carpets, dating back several centuries BC, shared many similarities with today's gilims. The knotting techniques used in carpet weaving likely evolved from simpler weaving methods.

Today, the most renowned gilim weavers are the nomadic Qashqai tribes of southern Iran. Using only natural sheep wool and vegetable dyes, these skilled artisans create intricate and unique designs, often based on ancient tribal patterns. Each gilim is a one-of-a-kind work of art, handcrafted with meticulous attention to detail.

Our Team is proud to carry on the Qashqai tradition by producing authentic hand-knotted kilims. Through reviving this ancient art and sharing it globally, we aim to preserve Iran's cultural heritage and showcase its beauty. Each piece reflects the skill and dedication of the artisans, ensuring this timeless craft continues for future generations.

TYPES OF KILIM

Simple or flat

They are mostly woven in a single color

one sided rug

They are similar to simple Kilims, but the patterning is done with an additional wefting method

Double-sided

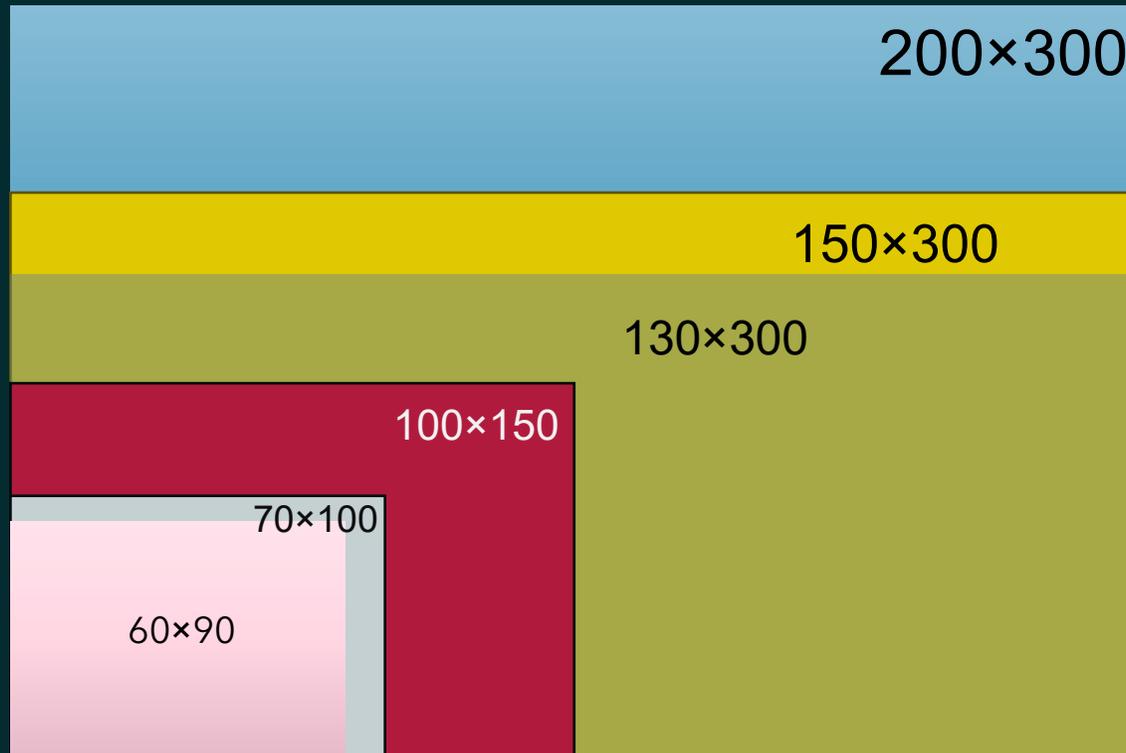

It has more wefts than simple rugs and is woven using the weft method. They are woven with two methods: slotted weft and connected weft.

Embossed

It is the most advanced and complete type of carpet, which is woven with a twist method and is the most similar to a carpet. In addition to warp and weft threads, they use colored threads to create relief patterns on the carpet.
